

Amber,

Today is Mother's Day, but it is also your birthday, so it feels like the world is making room to celebrate you twice.

I want you to know how deeply I see you and appreciate you. You are a force in my life. You are grounding, steady, beautiful, intentional, and full of light. You have a way of making love feel real, present, and protective. If my mother is the air, you are surely the earth: the gravity that helps keep me here, the warmth that reminds me I am held, and the presence that breathes life back into me when I need it most.

Your love is not bounded. Your crown is never tilted. You are strong like the bull, but gentle like Ferdinand. You shine with gratitude, care, and a kind of celestial beauty that feels rare and sacred.

I am grateful for you, not just for what you do, but for who you are. Thank you for loving me, grounding me, showing up for me, and reflecting light back onto me with so much intention.

Happy Birthday, Amber. Happy Mother's Day. I love you, and I hope today gives you even a fraction of the beauty, peace, abundance, and magic you give to everyone around you.
